ANNUAL FEMICIDE LIST

NOVEMBER 26th 2024 to NOVEMBER 25th 2025

Femicide is broadly defined as gender-related killing of women and girls by men. OAITH tracks femicide through the use of media reports to bring attention and raise public awareness of gender-related killing in Ontario. Definitions of femicide can be complex and can encompass different relationships, criminal justice charges and motives, leading to evolving and at times, different definitions by those examining and analyzing when women and girls are killed.

OAITH defines femicide as the gender-related killing of women, children and gender-diverse individuals by men that occur in Ontario. Our team reviews and analyzes hundreds of media articles every year to examine relationships between victims and those charged or deemed responsible, prior history of violence, criminal justice charges laid at the time the crime was committed, cause of death, race, geography, age and the location where these crimes occur. This information is used to advocate for change with community members, journalists, government officials and public policy makers because we know that femicides are preventable.

Since 1990 we are aware of over 1,120 femicide victims who have lost their lives to men's violence. Every year we release our Annual Femicide List based on media reporting of women and children killed by men in Ontario. We work to ensure that we remember the lives lost, bring attention to the violence women experience, and take action to move our list to zero.

As we rely upon media reporting to determine when women and children have been killed in Ontario there can be missing information, errors or omissions. The Annual Femicide List captures the femicides and criminal justice charges that we are aware of at the time of publication. We acknowledge that this is a limitation and doesn't capture all killings or where women are found dead who don't receive any justice at all. We do continual media monitoring of these cases and acknowledge that systemic forms of racism and oppression contributes to the undervaluing of those most marginalized who are killed by men.

In Partnership with: Our work on femicide reporting is done in partnership with Dr. Mavis Morton, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, University of Guelph.

OAITH would also like to acknowledge and thank Viktória Belle, Wilfred Laurier University placement student, for her ongoing support and work on OAITH's femicide research.
